- 12:13 am DeborahMersino: Tip: Parent Advocacy Groups should portray the issues in language outsiders can understand. #gtchat
- 12:13 am dididrama: In some ways, local is better. Esp in this economy. Local activities can be organised, ideas and resources shared #gtchat #gtchat
- 12:14 am CathRiordan: A new parents' group needs to be support for each other in the beginning and then grow into advocacy #gtchat
- 12:14 am DeborahMersino: Tip: Don't offend the people you are trying to convince (whether it's a school district, school board or legislator). #gtchat
- 12:14 am DeborahMersino: @dididrama @CathRiordan - Agree on both counts. #gtchat

- 12:15 am CathRiordan: So true RT @DeborahMersino: Tip: Dont offend the people you are trying to convince #gtchat
- 12:15 am deepwaterscoach: I think "outsiders" need to understand what's at stake for them. They don't see the need 4 the gifted 2 get the resources they need. #gtchat
- 12:15 am DeborahMersino: Tip: Identify the areas where change might happen the quickest. (Note: Saving GT program may not be easy, but we have to try!) #gtchat
- 12:16 am mygiftedgirl: Yes we must keep it simple, many parents care, but just too busy trying to keep up in life and can't focus on it as much as we do. #gtchat
- 12:16 am DavidsonGifted: Effective advocates are familiar with district policies, procedures and precedents. Do your research and be prepared! #gtchat
- 12:16 am DeborahMersino: Tip: See the issues from the other side. (Note: Budgets HAVE to be trimmed. It's how we talk about it that will allow us to prevail) #gtchat
- 12:16 am jofrei: @CathRiordan re support for each other in the beginning and then grow into advocacy #gtchat I agree wholeheartedly
- 12:16 am DeborahMersino: RT @DavidsonGifted: Effective advocates are familiar with district policies, procedures and precedents. Do your research and be prepared! #gtchat
- 12:17 am dididrama: It's hard to bring "outsiders" to understand how gifted kids might need extra resources. #gtchat
- 12:17 am DeborahMersino: My tip: Be a leader. Step up. Get involved. If you're not on District GT Advisory Committee, ask about it. #gtchat
- 12:17 am dididrama: Hard to explain that their not just "super-nerds" who should find school easy #gtchat
- 12:18 am DeborahMersino: @dididrama - Nothing is more potent than research coupled with emotion. Keeping it positive though is critical #gtchat
- 12:18 am mygiftedgirl: @DavidsonGifted we have a group of local district gifted advocates that met with our ESE Director and Gifted Specialist. #gtchat
- 12:18 am dididrama: Oh god I made a grammar mistake! #gtchat

- 12:18 am DeborahMersino: @dididrama - Dispelling myths is part of the job of an advocacy group. Enlighten and inform others in compelling ways! #gtchat
- 12:19 am mygiftedgirl: We must build relationships that are positive with our district employee leaders of gifted related services. #gtchat
- 12:19 am DeborahMersino: @mygiftedgirl - Talk more about what's working well and how. #gtchat
- 12:19 am CathRiordan: @dididrama LOL, and you a teacher! #gtchat
- 12:19 am DavidsonGifted: Create a paper trail for everything. Documentation is key. Follow up meetings with summary emails, don't accept verbal agreements #gtchat
- 12:20 am DeborahMersino: Tip: Don't worry if numbers are few. Note: Just start! Find like-minded leaders who are not whiners, who will got to the mat. #gtchat

- 12:20 am DeborahMersino: Tip: Connect problems to solutions and politics. - Weinfeld/Davis #gtchat
- 12:21 am CathRiordan: Gifted relted services, GT coordinators etc....no such things here. Just parents learning to be experts and fighting for their kids #gtchat
- 12:21 am cybraryman1: You have to be very organized and publicize your group. Develop a flyer & press releases for community papers, PTA etc. #gtchat

- 12:22 am mygiftedgirl: One leads the FB page, some share research, another leader helps us with district contacts.#gtchat
- 12:23 am DeborahMersino: The law can be on your side. Depends on where you reside. #gtchat
- 12:23 am dididrama: @CathRiordan does your group have a facebook page? #gtchat
