- 11:19 pm DeborahMersino: @LisaDSB I applaud/respect/admire your ability to homeschool/Have considered, but don't feel cut out for the job. See many benefits #gtchat
- 11:20 pm DeborahMersino: NEXT question: How have each of you made decisions re school choice? #gtchat
- 11:21 pm DeborahMersino: @teachgiftedkid - Therefore, would you recommend private for highly gifted? #gtchat

- 11:23 pm mpullen: @teachgiftedkid that's a pretty drastic blanket statement about public schools... my experience has been much different #gtchat

11:25 pm

GaryBramigan:

@cybraryman1 in choosing a school it is also important to see what support services are available for GT students & parents #gtchat

11:26 pm

DeborahMersino:

@cybraryman1 Great point. Some public/many private that "get it" will guide parents to enrichment, support, help, award ops., schol. #gtchat

11:26 pm

teachagiftedkid:

@mpullen Remember, it is just my experience. I lived in 2 states & involved in GT since 1988. It is wildly different everywhere #gtchat

11:26 pm

soundsuccess:

we left DS 2 long B4 moving him. He had breakdown and ended up with PTSD. still recovering 4 yrs later #gtchat

11:26 pm

jofrei:

@cybraryman1 I agree you need check what support will be given for students and parents #gtchat

11:26 pm

LisaDSB:

@DeborahMersino - it's a 24/7 job, but gets easier with time. I'm much more relaxed now than when we started. #gtchat

11:26 pm

DeborahMersino:

@educguess - Has the post-HS decision been made in your house? How did you go about it? Just curious. #gtchat

11:27 pm

educguess:

2 boys public with strong involvement, dev beyond school sources #gtchat

11:27 pm

Some schools have a parent support group for parents of g&t students #gtchat

11:27 pm

asynschlrshnd:

RT @teachagiftedkid Highly gifted not really present in public schools.<--they rarely can meet their needs! #gtchat

11:27 pm

DeborahMersino:

@soundsuccess - so very sorry to hear that...did you move him home, to private? How did you decide? #gtchat

11:28 pm

bfwritergt:

@DeborahMersino the teachers were often as quirky as we were, lol. former students created a Facebook fan page for one. #gtchat

11:28 pm

teachagiftedkid:

I would love to start parent support group at my school. It's a balancing act: needs of administration & needs of GT. #gtchat

11:28 pm

educguess:

@DeborahMersino 2 grad from college recently, road trips, taught decision making #gtchat

11:28 pm

DeborahMersino:

Advocating is crucial! W/ budget cuts, parents in our district had to go to bat to "save" GT (best part of their public education). #gtchat

11:29 pm

DeborahMersino:

@educguess - congrats to you! #gtchat

11:29 pm

soundsuccess:

Paediatrician told us to get him out. homeschooled for 2 yrs, now in Catholic school #gtchat very diff decision

11:30 pm

LisaDSB:

I had child at 4 who read encycl. & did multiplication but neither Montessori nor PS would consider a skip to grade 1. Why so hard? #gtchat

11:30 pm

DeborahMersino:

Moving from top-notch pub school in IL to less known pub school in CO, I've been so grateful for excellent GT programming here #gtchat

@DeborahMersino: Re: How have each of you made decisions re school choice? We had no choice- schools wld not work for our kids #gtchat

11:30 pm

bfwritergt:

@DeborahMersino my physics teacher invented experiments on the fly for us to do. it was true scientific inquiry. #gtchat

11:31 pm

DeborahMersino:

@LisaDSB I hear you. Sometimes it's a ridiculous battle that can't be won. Sounds like you truly supported them/made healthy choice. #gtchat

11:31 pm

teachagiftedkid:

I wish I understood the grade skipping issue better. How open are administrators to this? #gtchat

11:31 pm

DeborahMersino:

@AsynchSchlrshnd Makes sense. Do you homeschool as well? #gtchat

11:32 pm

soundsuccess:

we started sup group for local area. Someone else doing job now & I spend most my time helping people find the right school love it! #gtchat

11:32 pm

DeborahMersino:

@teachagiftedkid - It completely depends on admin& is so dependent upon individ. child's needs. Iowa Acceleration Scale - important. #gtchat

Grade skipping has pros and cons - skipped one and not other #gtchat

- 11:33 pm DeborahMersino: One more school choice/consulting resource via Dr. Deborah Ruf.
<http://www.educationaloptions.com/> #gtchat
- 11:33 pm soundsuccess: @teachagiftedkid Grade skipping becoming more common in our area- has taken a lot of work to get it accepted. #gtchat
- 11:34 pm TheNextMartha: @teachagiftedkid It doesn't happen in our district. They claim that our district is already accelerated so no skipping needed. #gtchat
- 11:34 pm jofrei: @teachagiftedkid Re grade skipping very varied degrees of acceptance of idea here - I love the Iowa Acceleration Scales #gtchat
- 11:34 pm DeborahMersino: @educguess - Agree re pros and cons. I wish more public & private schools allowed for ability grouping across grades. #gtchat
- 11:34 pm teachagiftedkid: @DeborahMersino The key is getting the info to administration on the pros & cons. Don't think there is acceleration scale in TX #gtchat
- 11:35 pm DeborahMersino: @TheNextMartha That's sad. For gifted & esp profoundly gifted (who absorb/learn material at rates so much faster), it's wrong. #gtchat
- 11:35 pm TheNextMartha: @DeborahMersino @teachagiftedkid Also is it better to skip an earlier grade for example K/1 b/c other grades are harder? #gtchat
- 11:35 pm soundsuccess: grade skipping great if process and recommendations followed correctly- 2 often it isn't #gtchat
- 11:35 pm teachagiftedkid: @TheNextMartha I really do hate that 'attitude' when it comes to districts. Should be open to researched based methods. #gtchat
- 11:36 pm bfwritergt: something interesting that just came in on my feed: RT @GOOD: Are small schools of choice the future? <http://su.pr/2mtaRJ> #gtchat
- 11:36 pm asynschlrfsnd: @DeborahMersino yes,we homeschool #gtchat
- 11:36 pm DeborahMersino: @teachagiftedkid - Most administrators who understand "gifted" will use Iowa Acceleration Scale in any state. Nationally accepted. #gtchat
- 11:36 pm TheNextMartha: @DeborahMersino I have a secret feeling it's so they can keep test scores high in this affluent/ well educated area. #gtchat
- 11:37 pm jofrei: Recently Dr Gail Byrne spoke on 'You have the assessment What happens next?' Was excellent for parents trying to advocate #gtchat
- 11:37 pm soundsuccess: Grade skipping is 2 often seen as the answer- when it is only part of the answer #gtchat
- 11:37 pm DeborahMersino: @TheNextMartha - As @soundsuccess states, it really depends. Earlier may in fact be better - IF right process is followed. #gtchat
- 11:37 pm n8ngrimm: I made a education chat aggregator, check it out: <http://wbx.me/w/4cgh7e>

- 11:38 pm DeborahMersino: @TheNextMartha - You are so likely right. #gtchat
- 11:38 pm TheNextMartha: @teachagiftedkid We were able to get somewhat of a "custom plan" for him for next year. (2nd) #gtchat
- 11:38 pm asynschlrfsnd: @teachagiftedkid: Re: grade skipping, depends on the administrator. Many don't understand, & w/o compacting it is only a temp fix #gtchat
- 11:39 pm educguess: Grade skipping is a limited options, ability grouping is a greater support #gtchat
- 11:39 pm DeborahMersino: Wish @DeepWatersCoach was here! Kids attend a CO STEM charter school, where kids move across grade levels depending on subject. #gtchat
- 11:39 pm soundsuccess: @TheNextMartha That is so essential. #gtchat
- 11:40 pm DeborahMersino: @educguess - Agree! #gtchat
- 11:40 pm TheNextMartha: @DeborahMersino our district claims that by high school (almost) every child has been prepared for AP courses. #gtchat

- 11:40 pm cybraryman1: Not crazy about grade skipping. My brother graduated college at 19. I was 20. Too young! #gtchat
- 11:40 pm LisaDSB: Very HG+ kids need a lot of learning autonomy & individualization -- and even a grade skip won't provide that. #gtchat
- 11:40 pm DeborahMersino: Self-contained gifted classroom is usually the best choice - Gilman (I concur) #gtchat
- 11:40 pm asynschlrfsnd: @TheNextMartha kids who are #gifted are so from birth so the sooner their needs are addressed, the better. #gtchat
- 11:41 pm DeborahMersino: @cybraryman1 - Please share more! What made it difficult? #gtchat
- 11:41 pm DeborahMersino: RT @LisaDSB: Very HG+ kids need a lot of learning autonomy & individualization -- and even a grade skip won't provide that. #gtchat
- 11:41 pm DeborahMersino: RT @asynschlrfsnd: @TheNextMartha kids who are #gifted are so from birth so the sooner their needs are addressed, the better. #gtchat
- 11:41 pm soundsuccess: @cybraryman1 Grade skipping doesn't have to mean early college/uni entry. There are so many pathways and options #gtchat
- 11:41 pm teachagiftedkid: I would think that grade skipping must be a clearly orchestrated process so parents don't see it as favoritism #gtchat
- 11:42 pm DeborahMersino: What about public vs. private vs. homeschool relative to costs? Has this played vital role in your decision making? #gtchat
- 11:43 pm DeborahMersino: @teachagiftedkid - Well orchestrated & explained, b/c favoritism has nothing to do with it, but meeting educ/social-emot needs does. #gtchat
- 11:43 pm LisaDSB: @DeborahMersino -- I had decided to forego career b4 HS, so not a factor. Cheaper to HS than to pay private tuition by far! #gtchat
- 11:44 pm teachagiftedkid: I agree that self-contained GT classes are best. It's difficult to feel like I have impact in pull-out w/o support of reg teacher #gtchat
- 11:44 pm DeborahMersino: I've been so impressed w/many privates, but know cost can be inhibitor. What about income loss though when parents homeschool? #gtchat
- 11:44 pm soundsuccess: Financials have to come in2 it. We nearly lost our house when I gave up work to homeschool. But he was worth it! all good now #gtchat
- 11:45 pm teachagiftedkid: @DeborahMersino You would think so. But I've experienced this. Not a good thing at all. #gtchat
- 11:45 pm teachagiftedkid: #gtchat
- 11:45 pm soundsuccess: RT @teachagiftedkid: I agree that self-contained GT classes are best. It's difficult to feel like I have impact in pull-out w/o support of reg teacher #gtchat
- 11:45 pm DeborahMersino: Also, did any of you grade skip? I was able to (until I moved to new district that didn't believe in it - wasted several years). #gtchat
- 11:45 pm soundsuccess: @LisaDSB Agree. You can always find a way. #gtchat
- 11:46 pm teachagiftedkid: I was exploring teaching homeschoolers before this job. Some parents combine w/classes offered locally w/homeschool. #gtchat
- 11:47 pm DeborahMersino: @teachagiftedkid I hear u/sad, isn't it? & I completely agree about needing full support/classroom teacher. Otherwise, doesn't work! #gtchat
- 11:47 pm asynschlrfsnd: @soundsuccess @cybraryman1 re: many paths 2 college/alternatives, 1 freq path is community college classes young, then FT enrollmt #gtchat
- 11:47 pm soundsuccess: I teach a homeschool class once a fortnight- the kids love it! #gtchat
- 11:47 pm cybraryman1: @DeborahMersino Socially it was very hard. Missed out on a lot #gtchat
- 11:47 pm bfwritergt: I never grade-skipped, but I was accelerated in certain subjects and pulled out of others for individual work/instruction. #gtchat
- 11:48 pm DeborahMersino: Impressed with all of you homeschooling pros. Agree costs of privates = more than homeschooling. What other benefits do you see? #gtchat

- 11:48 pm LisaDSB: I do legal contract work from home around HS, so that helps a bit (not much, compared to FT practice, I'm afraid). #gtchat
- 11:48 pm jofrei: Monash Uni provides excellent science sessions for homeschoolers #gtchat
- 11:49 pm teachagiftedkid: In the ideal GT world: I wish for ability & social grouping to meet the needs of the child. Age would have nothing to do with it. #gtchat
- 11:49 pm asynschlrfsnd: @jofrei I'll say (costs), for most! But some PG kids need high-level tutors young or other expensive resources. #gtchat
- 11:49 pm DeborahMersino: Love seeing spark that comes from gifted kids being among peers. The energy/crit. thinking/even challenges/competitiveness = healthy #gtchat
- 11:49 pm LisaDSB: Benefits to HS? Can pursue interests and passions and spend time working on emotional issues. Family is closer, less hectic. #gtchat
- 11:50 pm teachagiftedkid: @soundsuccess Kudos to you for understanding this about yourself and being willing to share your experiences to help others! #gtchat
- 11:50 pm jofrei: @DeborahMersino Benefits of home ed - can move as fast as needed, be at diff levels for each subject can use mentors etc #gtchat
- 11:51 pm asynschlrfsnd: @LisaDSB nicely said re: emotional needs—I agree! #gtchat
- 11:51 pm soundsuccess: @DeborahMersino Agree!!! No more chronological apartheid. #gtchat
- 11:51 pm teachagiftedkid: My creatively gifted husband talks about that 'spark' which he didn't experience until his Sr year in HS at a Math summer camp. #gtchat
- 11:51 pm DeborahMersino: Has anyone here attending private/pub gifted besides @bfwritergt or sent their children to private gifted ? Just curious? #gtchat
- 11:51 pm soundsuccess: RT @jofrei: @DeborahMersino Benefits of home ed - can move as fast as needed, be at diff levels for each subject can use mentors etc #gtchat
- 11:52 pm DeborahMersino: @cybraryman1 - Get it. Seems like social aspects would, in fact, be most difficult aspects. #gtchat
- 11:52 pm jofrei: More benefits of home ed. allows time for deep thought and off the set path exploration #gtchat
- 11:52 pm DeborahMersino: RT @jofrei: @DeborahMersino Benefits of home ed - can move as fast as needed, be at diff levels for each subject can use mentors etc #gtchat
- 11:53 pm teachagiftedkid: I worked at a private gifted school in West Houston for a year. Parents loved that their child could be themselves at school. #gtchat
- 11:53 pm soundsuccess: @DeborahMersino Ours is not private gifted as such but may as well be. Programs so good they draw lareg numbers of gifted #gtchat
- 11:53 pm DeborahMersino: To me, the leader of a school sets tone. We're at public - leader just left...may follow. It's THAT important. #gtchat

- 11:54 pm LisaDSB: DS10 does algebra at home. Couldn't do at PS, even in congregated gifted class where they stay on same curric. as reg. (just more) #gtchat
- 11:54 pm teachagiftedkid: Parents need to be reassured that their child was 'understood' and challenged in any schooling situation. #gtchat
- 11:55 pm DeborahMersino: There's also nothing like an excellent GT educator (whether at home/pub/private). Kids need to be "seen" - fully seen/be themselves. #gtchat
- 11:55 pm soundsuccess: @DeborahMersino Agree! Teach to test is a big prob in Aus. Other HUGE prob- no teacher training. #gtchat
