- 11:07 pm asynschlrfsnd: RT @DeborahMersino Perfectionism <http://bit.ly/aRg45L> <-- good article but it often self-originate with #gifted kids themselves #gtchat
- 11:07 pm DeborahMersino: Re Q1: Make that "social-emotional" challenges. Could also be societal influence/media/modeling....what do you think? #gtchat
- 11:07 pm deepwaterscoach: Q1 I think GT kids sometimes just speak the truth abt themselves blatantly, not realizing it sounds like bragging. #gtchat
- 11:07 pm GaryBrannigan: @FrazzId I was thinking ha ha, but now I'm not so sure! #gtchat
- 11:08 pm asynschlrfsnd: @GaryBrannigan Funny? There are no funny people here. :P #gtchat
- 11:08 pm deepwaterscoach: Q1 I think also sometimes GT kids don't know how to get att'n in other ways, so they "brag." #gtchat
- 11:08 pm teachagiftedkid: My experience is that it begins with how the parent views the purpose of a gifted program. #gtchat
- 11:08 pm asynschlrfsnd: @DeborahMersino re: Q1 braggart behavior is often rooted in insecurity, low self-esteem, trying to build self up. #gtchat
- 11:08 pm mygiftedgirl: hmmm teachers sometimes feed it. Which can be good too sometimes. #gtchat
- 11:08 pm deepwaterscoach: Q1 I think GT kids are frequently confused--how do they own their abilities w/o sounding prideful? #gtchat
- 11:08 pm DeborahMersino: @DeepWatersCoach - Agreed. Especially when they're younger (toddler to tween). #gtchat
- 11:08 pm FrazzId: @DeborahMersino Q1, Lack of fit? Insecurity/need for reassurance sometimes. #gtchat

- 11:09 pm jofrei: @DeborahMersino Sometimes bragging = asynchronous development but sometimes it is just being forthright or truthful or literal #gtchat
- 11:09 pm LesLinks: @DeborahMersino Well, I have also seen kids pick up adults talking about iq and such and then compete with others/define themselves #gtchat
- 11:09 pm DeborahMersino: RT @asynschlrnsfnd: @DeborahMersino re: Q1 braggart behavior is often rooted in insecurity, low self-esteem, trying to build self up. #gtchat
- 11:09 pm teachagiftedkid: So the socio-emotional issues play the bigger role, I believe. #gtchat
- 11:09 pm asynschlrnsfnd: @DeepWatersCoach I agree that stating facts about self especially if profoundly #gifted sounds like bragging. #gtchat
- 11:09 pm DeborahMersino: Excellent ? RT @DeepWatersCoach Q1 I think GT kids are frequently confused--how do they own their abilities w/o sounding prideful? #gtchat

- 11:24 pm deepwaterscoach: I think we need to be careful abt honing in on our kids' weaknesses. They're already potentially insecure and perfectionistic! #gtchat
- 11:24 pm asynchschrfsnd: @DeepWatersCoach asynchronous can just mean intellectual level = different "age" than your chronological age, so fits all #gifted #gtchat
- 11:25 pm LesLinks: @ljconrad Yes, indeed, but does work better as a partnership with school.. #gtchat
- 11:25 pm DeborahMersino: @bfwritergt - Completely get it. It's the feeling I call "too-muchness"/sad in itself. We should revel in our passion/excitement! #gtchat
