11:20 pm DeborahMersino: Q2: Yes, rote/non-challenging work certainly doesn't motivate. #gtchat

11:20 pm chrstinef: @ljconrad never too late...just may mean taking an alternate path...potentially good learning experience! #gtchat

11:22 pm 0Quest0: @Boz23 I agree - I don't feel it is but would need to persuade school too! #gtchat

11:22 pm cybraryman1: How do you feel about a ILP (Individual Learning Plan) for each student to really meet their academic/social/emotional needs? #gtchat

11:22 pm MaryStGeorge: @0Quest0 you don't think conceptual learning requires effort? It must mean something different there! #gtchat

11:22 pm Boz23: #gtchat Motivation - give chn 'secret' techniques to employ when work is boring - ie things to do inside your head

11:23 pm Susanewith3: Q3 There's always external reward "do it for a chocolate" (totally would work for me ;) #gtchat

11:23 pm DeborahMersino: @cybraryman1 - I think it's critical to include affective goals in the ILP/ALP. We're setting them now (beginning of year). #gtchat

11:23 pm godsgifts: Mom of Gt son from Central PA #gtchat

11:23 pm MaryStGeorge: ILPs / IEPs are only as good as the follow-up - some teachers have such huge workloads that follow-up is harder than they expect #gtchat

11:24 nm deepwaterscoach: @AldridgeDuff Welcome! By all means join--and enjoy--the fray! It's pretty frayed! #gtchat

- 11:24 pm Frazzlld: Started future prob solving prog this week. Kids met at lunchtime to work on it and after school today, by choice. Motivated much!! #gtchat
- 11:24 pm DeborahMersino: @AldridgeDuff - Welcome. We're discussing how to motivate students who may not feel challenged or inclined to complete homework. #gtchat
- 11:24 pm chrstinef: Q3 important to facillitate process of getting work done, not focusing on right answer #gtchat
- 11:24 pm DeborahMersino: @godsgifts - Welcome! #gtchat
- 11:24 pm jofrei: RT @cybraryman1 See my Motivating Students page (Davidson & Duke links): <http://bit.ly/dhgPoC> #gtchat

- 11:24 pm AldridgeDuff: Q3. I think this question dovetails nicely with @padgets question about IEPs for gifted students #gtchat
- 11:24 pm padgets: #gtchat I would like to try more PBL with my gifted kids more independent work directly related to developing their gift, tough sell
- 11:25 pm 0Quest0: @MaryStGeorge Just meant that for my son he learns concepts very easily and then thinks he can learn everything easily eg languages #gtchat
- 11:25 pm chrstinef: Q3 setting expectations with regards to task completion also important, as well as time monitoring #gtchat
- 11:25 pm DeborahMersino: @padgets - Many states in US require ALP (Advanced Learning Plans). Some utilize well/others don't. #gtchat
- 11:25 pm padgets: @elonahartjes thanks! #gtchat
- 11:25 pm Susannewith3: @chrstinef YES, my oldest's biggest frustration is when he can't do it in his head and has to do math 'on paper' working on that. #gtchat
- 11:25 pm DeborahMersino: RT @chrstinef: Q3 important to facillitate process of getting work done, not focusing on right answer #gtchat
- 11:25 pm godsgifts: We try and narrate on life for our kids. It makes things real. #gtchat
- 11:26 pm Boz23: @Frazzlld #gtchat FPS gives enough choice for chn with different gifts to be motivated. Still motivates me after 20 years!
- 11:26 pm chrstinef: @Susannewith3 very common issue #gtchat
- 11:26 pm DeborahMersino: Q4: What type of Affective Goals have you seen on ALPs and/or worked on at home? #gtchat
- 11:26 pm MaryStGeorge: #gtchat it depends on the nature of the homework. If it is rote, rewards must be extrinsic, often. If open-ended, help find intrinsic appeal
- 11:26 pm elonahartjes: @padgets PBL gets more difficult in high school because content rules #gtchat
- 11:26 pm padgets: @DeborahMersino #gtchat I have never seen one, I am in Iowa
- 11:26 pm deepwaterscoach: RT @DeborahMersino: Q4: What type of Affective Goals have you seen on ALPs and/or worked on at home? #gtchat
- 11:27 pm chrstinef: Q3 use HW as a way to trach executive skills like organization and self monitoring #gtchat
- 11:27 pm Susannewith3: Q3 using some books out there to show why certain lessons are needed. Stuart Murphy's Mathstarts are easy reads & make math funish #gtchat
- 11:27 pm Boz23: #gtchat Inquiry-based learning when done well is excellent for motivating gifted.

- 11:27 pm DeborahMersino: Regarding frustrations...SENG suggests "Respond initially not to the event (i.e. homework meltdown), but to the feelings surrounding. #gtchat
- 11:27 pm MaryStGeorge: use renzulli style curriculum compacting to replace homework with studies that interest your child #gtchat
- 11:27 pm chrstinef: Q3 - that should say "teach" not "trach" #gtchat
- 11:27 pm rdweatherly: Q2: I was always motivated by the next challenge. All I wanted was acknowledgment that I'd succeeded at the previous one. #gtchat
- 11:27 pm padgets: @elonahartjes but surely if I can show it is what is best for the child should it not be accepted? #gtchat
- 11:28 pm Frazzlld: @Boz23 Certainly a challenge for me....I'm totally new to it! #gtchat
- 11:28 pm Dazzlld: Q3 Homework issue is simple here, older ones get detention if not done, motivation is in avoiding that :-(#gtchat
- 11:28 pm chrstinef: @DeborahMersino Use as a teachable moment to emotionally coach child #gtchat
- 11:28 pm deepwaterscoach: RT @rdweatherly: Q2: I was motivated by the next challenge. All I wanted was acknowledgment that I'd succeeded at the previous one. #gtchat

11:55 pm MaryStGeorge: #gtchat instead of "you melted down again", notice things like "you calmed yourself down so much faster than you used to". It helps!

11:56 pm DeborahMersino: Yes, and learning to allow natural consequences to happen...so important/but difficult for parents sometimes. Long-term good tho #gtchat

11:56 pm MaryStGeorge: @jofrei agreed about intellectualising meltdowns, also drawing what happened and alternatives can help. #gtchat

11:57 pm MaryStGeorge: RT @AldridgeDuff: I like deferred debriefing because it gives me time as well - to check my own reactions, actions, motivations. Did I play a part? #gtchat
